

On 18th and 19th of April 2009, we visited Cashel in region Tipparary in Ireland. It was our first time that we were on Irish ground.

Cashel is a lovely town with outstanding restaurants, beautiful houses, Very old churches and, particularly, the very famous Rock of Cashel.

During our stay in Cashel, Niall Gregory, was not only our host, but also our smart guide, who told us everything we wanted to know about history, archaeology, typical Irish food and drinks, etc.

Niall is one of the leading persons of the local members of our Charter. Niall, thank you so much. Due to you, our short stay became an impressive and very memorable stay.

Frans and Anny Ronnes

